Objetivos

This is an advanced level course designed to provide the student with a contemporary and in-depth analysis of a grammatical area of English grammar that tends to be complicated for native Spanish speakers: "The complex sentence".

The grammatical theory will be presented in English, which is the working language of the course. Once a given topic has been discussed and analyzed, students will be provided with exercises related to this topic. A mock exam will be held in February or beginning of March in order to monitor the progress of the students.

Programa de Teoría

1. Introduction to the complex sentence
2. Reported Speech
3. Nominal clauses
4. Adverbial clauses
5. Adjective clauses

Programa Práctico

Evaluación

Students will be evaluated on the basis of assignments, team work and a final exam that will account for both the theoretical and practical progress of the student's knowledge of the English language.

In terms of the assignments, students can submit an optional project. All topics dealt in the project must be related to one or more of the major themes discussed in class ("the complex sentence") and be pre-approved by the lecturer. In terms of the team work, students will be evaluated on the basis of their working together.
